“ While camping, I built a campfire. You must understand, when I say campfire, I mean bonfire! All of a sudden, there was a rustling sound in the leaves behind the fire. All I could think of was a snake, she thought it was something smaller, like a mouse! When I put the campfire out, it stopped rustling. Next morning, we went out to see whatever it was. Well we both were wrong! It was a scorched frog. Being the good Girl Scout, she felt bad for the poor thing. Overcoming her fear of insects, she killed one for the poor thing. She tried to feed the frog with a dead insect on a long stick. After five minutes, I went in the camper. She finally came in, telling me I should have stayed outside, because the frog does have a real long tongue. She said she tried not to poke it when she fed it! The poor thing. Next day, she saw the scorched frog. We had to get water in a container so he could get cooled off from the fire!
