“ I met “Uncle Bob” when I was just a little girl of 5 or 6, playing with Jill at her house. It was easy to see, even at that age, that he was a kind and loving person. Throughout my childhood years, Uncle Bob proved to me that not all men are bad. He was a very loving example of what men should be. Watching the deep love between him and Judy had such a positive influence on my life. I’m so grateful to have witnessed what a marriage should be. And how a husband should treat his wife and children. He always was so kind to me. I’ll never forget the kindness and support he would show me when I would tell him about a problem I was having. He tried so hard to comfort me. I’ll never forget his genuine concern and compassion he showed me. I’ll also never forget how amazed I was when he put in such beautiful landscaping in just a day or two. He was truly an amazing man who influenced my life so much more than I think he realized. I’m pretty sure that he knows now.
